

ASKS GOVERNOR TO OUST JEROME

Lawyer Petitions for Removal of County Prosecutor.

DUE TO POLICEMAN M'GEE.

"Suspend Jack" Called Before District-Attorney About a Civil Suit.

Charges alleging oppression, abusive processes and interference in a civil action have been preferred against District-Attorney Jerome and will reach the Governor tonight. A petition asking for the removal of the prosecutor will accompany the charges, which will be forwarded to Albany by special messenger.

The charges grew out of the case of Policeman John C. McGee, better known as "Suspend" Jack, who on April 2 was subpoenaed to the office of the District-Attorney and questioned by Assistant District-Attorney Sanford concerning the payment of alimony to McGee's wife.

She had sued for a separation and the courts decreed that McGee must pay his wife $4 a week alimony.

This he has refused to do, although ordered to make payment by Col. Partridge, before whom McGee was brought up on charges.

The subpoena served on McGee was made to read "in the case of the people against John Doe." In the upper left-hand corner was written, "See Mr. Sanford."

The case represented on the subpoena proved to be flimsy, as McGee afterwards discovered when he talked with Mr. Sanford.

The Assistant District-Attorney demanded of McGee why he did not pay the alimony to his wife. McGee protested against answering any questions which concerned his case, saying neither Mr. Sanford nor Mr. Jerome had any business to question him on that score. McGee was warned that a return made by Sanford and made use of some expression which cast aspersions upon the District-Attorney. To-day the case against McGee was reopened at Police Headquarters to-day.

Lawyer Frederick P. Randolph has preferred the charges through Lawyer Pingree, of No. 271 Broadway.

MUST ENFORCE ALL THE LAWS.

President Addresses Great Crowd at Charleston.

GENEROUS HELP FOR CUBA.

Our Duty to New Island Republic Manifest—Peace in Philippines.

CHARLESTON, April 9.—President Roosevelt addressed a vast multitude of people at the Exposition this afternoon.

Generous help for Cuba, equal enforcement of the laws in our own country, just supervision and control of the great trade combinations, whether of capital or labor, peace and civil government in the Philippines under our flag, were the keywords of the President's speech.

This was "President's Day" at the exposition. The events of the day began with a grand procession through the principal streets of Charleston, and afterward there were speeches in the exposition auditorium, the presentation of a sword by the President to Major Micah Jenkins, a luncheon at the Woman's Building and inspection of the grounds and buildings.

The parade was the most important that Charleston has ever seen. Besides the President and distinguished visitors, United States army-men, United States marines and jacksies, there were soldiers from various States and cadets from two military academies.

Salute for President.

The Presidential party was driven directly to the Exposition auditorium, where the President reviewed the troops from a platform erected at that point. The President's salute of twenty-one guns was fired by the German artillery on the entrance of the President into the Exposition grounds.

At noon the President proceeded from the reviewing stand into the auditorium, where the formal ceremonies occurred. Addresses were made by Capt. F. W. Wagener, President of the South Carolina Interstate and West Indian Exposition Company; Gov. McSweeney, of South Carolina; Gov. Aycock, of North Carolina; Mayor Smyth, of Charleston, and the President of the United States.

Immediately after the addresses, a handsome sword was presented to Major Micah Jenkins, the presentation being made by President Roosevelt. The sword was handed to the President by ex-Gov. Hugh S. Thompson.

Ex-Gov. Thompson, in requesting President Roosevelt to present the sword to Major Jenkins, told him the men and women of South Carolina in this way desired to express their high admiration for him and respect for his office.

Carolinian by Inheritance.

In opening, the President said it was a peculiar privilege to him to speak in Charleston. He claimed the State by inheritance, he said, since his mother's people were Georgians, and long before that were South Carolinians.

He spoke of the great history of Charleston, linked with the mightiest events of the American past. In the colonial days it was the outpost of our people against the Spaniard; in the revolution great things had been done there; and there, finally, had begun the tremendous drama of the civil war.

"With delicate and thoughtful courtesy you originally asked me," continued the President, "to come to this Exposition on the birthday of Abraham Lincoln. The invitation not only showed a fine generosity and manliness in you, my hosts, but it also emphasized as hardly anything else could have emphasized how completely we are now a united people."

Heroes of the Blue and the Gray. "All of us, North and South, can glory alike in the valor of the men who were

O. W. SCHAFER SHOT HIMSELF.

Dying When His Clerks Rushed Into Private Office.

MAKE A MYSTERY OF IT.

Secretary of Baker Chocolate Company, Whose Officials Are Strangely Silent.

Officials of the W. A. Baker Chocolate Co. have cast a deep mantle of mystery about the suicide of Oscar W. Schafer, the secretary of that concern, this afternoon. He shot himself while alone in his private office and was dying when clerks, attracted by the report, ran in. The bullet entered his right temple and lodged in the brain.

Mr. Schafer was twenty-eight years old. His private office was in the rear of the suite occupied by the W. A. Baker Company on the second floor of the building at the Wall street address. The office was separated from other offices in the suite by a partition extending to the ceiling.

The sound of a revolver shot in the private office of the secretary at 4 o'clock created a sensation in the office. The first to arrive found the body of Mr. Schafer in his office chair. Dr. C. C. Page, of No. 127 Liberty street, was called, but when he arrived Schafer was dead.

At first it was thought that the man had been assassinated by some one who had escaped through the rear door of the suite of offices and down the elevator. Later on it was determined that Schafer had killed himself.

Officials of the company refused to discuss the suicide of the secretary; they went so far as to deny to an Evening World reporter that anything of the kind had happened, and that there was a dead man in the office at the time.

Mr. Schafer's home was at No. 345 Central Park West. He leaves a wife and one child, who were out walking in the Park when The Evening World reporters reached the building with news of the suicide.

DIED AT MOMENT HUSBAND DID.

WISHED TO PASS AWAY WITH HIM.

Wife Attacked by Hemorrhage at Time His Life Was Ended.

Mrs. Barbara Kuppfer, who has been living with her daughter, Mrs. Mary Fitzgerald, at No. 164 India street, Williamsburg, said many times during the last month while her husband was ill in the Kings County Hospital, that she hoped they would die together. She went to see her husband, who was suffering from consumption, nearly every day, and they often expressed the hope that death would not separate them.

They have their wish. They died at the same minute last night, and on Friday their bodies will be buried in the same grave.

Mrs. Kuppfer was fifty-two years old and her husband was a few years her senior. When he became so ill that it was thought best to send him to the hospital she grieved sorely, but was told that she could visit him as often as she pleased. She often complained that she was afraid her husband would die first and spoke sorrowfully over his illness and her own good health.

Last night she had a fit of coughing, during which she broke a blood vessel and died within a few minutes. Her daughter went to a telephone and called up the Kings County Hospital.

"Tell Henry Kuppfer," she said to the hospital physician, "that his wife is dead. Please break the news to him gently."

"Wait a moment," said the physician. Then he asked, "Who are you?"

"I am Mr. Kuppfer's daughter."

"Well, I have bad news for you," said the doctor. "Your father is no more. He died fifteen minutes ago. We were just about to send you a message."

A comparison of the times at which Mr. and Mrs. Kuppfer died shows that they passed away within a minute or thereabouts of each other. Their wish to go together was realized.

JEROME NOW HUNTS M'AULIFFE SLAYERS.

He and Partridge Join Effort to Land Police Murderers Behind Bars—World's Witnesses Called.

Significant steps toward punishing the murderers of James McAuliffe, the Glenon witness, were taken to-day.

With a view to having several policemen of the West Forty-seventh street station indicted for the crime, District-Attorney Jerome this afternoon examined witnesses found by The World. Police Commissioner Partridge joined in the hunt.

Startling testimony was given corroborating the theory that McAuliffe was beaten in a cell, then thrust into a cab and pitched out into the street, while a "dummy" was arraigned in court.

The World has found one witness who knows the policeman who stood guard while McAuliffe was put in the cab.

Six witnesses in all saw McAuliffe in the cab, and several of these can identify the plain-clothes men who were with him.

GRAND JURY IS NOW EXPECTED TO FIND M'AULIFFE MURDER INDICTMENTS.

All the witnesses in the McAuliffe murder mystery were summoned to the Criminal Courts Building this afternoon.

It is expected that developments of the gravest character will be made public very soon. The Grand Jury is expected to act.

District-Attorney Jerome and Police Commissioner Partridge held a conference upon the case in the District-Attorney's office while Assistant District-Attorney Lord was taking the depositions of the witnesses found by The World.

Among the witnesses summoned to talk with the District-Attorney about the case were Policeman Reddy, who arraigned the "dummy" in court, and Plain-Clothes Men Darcy and Schoenleib, who are attached to the West

Forty-seventh street station, and who are under indictment for neglect of duty at the same time with Glenon, against whom McAuliffe testified.

One Policeman Known.

The name of the policeman who stood guard outside the West Forty-seventh street station-house on the morning of Sunday, Feb. 16, and drove onlookers away while James McAuliffe was being hustled out of the place and into a waiting cab, is known to The World.

An accurate description of one of the wardmen who lifted McAuliffe into the cab from which he was thrust dying five minutes later is also in the possession of The World.

According to the testimony of John Lennon, this wardman and his companion in the cab were the actual murderers of McAuliffe.

"I followed the cab and saw a struggle going on inside," said Lennon in his affidavit. It will be remembered that Lennon identified the man hustled into the cab as McAuliffe, whom he had known for years.

Sure to Identify Him. A new witness, whose affidavit is in the possession of The World, says: "The last one to get in (the cab) was a sort of short man, looked to be a German, with lightish hair, wore dark clothes and is inclined to be banty-legged. I am quite sure I could identify him."

The name of this witness is withheld for good and sufficient reasons, as is the name of the policeman who ordered him to move on from in front of the station-house. His statement strikingly supports the affidavit given by Aaron Cohen, which The World printed yesterday.

HUSBAND KILLED BY TAILOR'S GOOSE.

MRS. PALMBERG SUES PREGERS FOR $50,000.

Asserts that Accident Was Due to Carelessness of Clothing Manufacturer's Employee.

Adeline H. Palmborg, widow of Raymond H. Palmborg, claims $50,000 damages from Isaac and Louis Pregers for the death of her husband, killed by a tailor's goose crashing through the skylight over his office, 710 Broadway.

The case is on trial before Justice DuBois and a jury in the Supreme Court, in behalf of Mrs. Palmborg, Mr. Myers claims that the tailor's goose fell out of the window of Pregers Bros., clothing manufacturers, on the ninth floor, and, crashing through the skylight, fractured Mr. Palmborg's skull as he sat at his desk on the first floor. This was last April, and it is claimed that the mishap was due to carelessness.

Mrs. Palmborg, clad in widow's weeds, was called as the first witness, but H. F. Einstein, for the defense, admitted that she would testify that her husband was engaged in a profitable business, and that his skull was fractured by a falling tailor's iron. So it was not necessary for her to testify.

Robert Loeb, employed next door, testified that he saw the goose fall out and heard the crash as it went through the skylight.

The trial is still on.

THROWS HIMSELF BEFORE TROLLEY.

ELLING NEILSON ALARMS BROOKLYN SHOPPERS.

Speculator Is Rescued by Policeman and Held for Trial.

In the sight of hundreds of Brooklyn shoppers, Eling Neilson, a distinguished-looking man, about forty-five years old, threw himself in front of a moving trolley car at Fulton and Hoyt streets, to-day.

He was dragged off the track by a policeman before he was crushed. Taken to the Adams Street Court he was held on a charge of attempted suicide.

Neilson said he was despondent because of unlikely speculations of late. He gave his address as No. 88 Livingston street.

This is a furnished-room house. It was said there that his brother, an architect, brought Neilson to the place last night, saying he was ill. This morning Neilson got out of the house without being seen. When his brother discovered this he went in search of him, only to find him a prisoner, but alive.

SEVERELY BEATEN BY POLICE; FEARS M'AULIFFE'S FATE.

Young Baker, Suffering Painful Injuries, Appeals to Evening World.

"I want The Evening World to print my story," said Gustav Barr to-day, "so that if I am found dead the people may know that the police killed me. I have been threatened with death by a policeman of the West Twentieth street station whose name I do not know. Policeman Weeks, of the same station, has also made threats against me."

"I am employed as a live over Thomas's bakery, at No. 161 Ninth avenue. Casper Dipple, of No. 56 Ninth avenue, also works at the bakery. We finished our baking at about 2 o'clock this morning, looked up the shop and started up the street for a glass of beer."

"We went into a saloon at Seventeenth street and got our drinks. When we came out we saw two policemen across the street. We walked down Ninth avenue and met two more policemen in the middle of the block. At Sixteenth street there were two more policemen."

"What are all you cops doing out?" I asked in a joking way. "I never saw so many cops on Ninth avenue before."

"It's bums like you that brings us over here," replied one of the policemen, a tall young chap with a light moustache.

"With that he hauled off and smashed me on the jaw with his club, knocking my cigar out of my mouth. As I stooped for the cigar he said: 'Go in, a rock, are you, you —' and soaked me on the left arm, almost breaking it."

"At this the other policeman, Weeks, started in to soak Dipple, and between them we thought they would beat us to death. We begged for mercy, but they kept on and called us the vilest names they could lay their tongues to."

"When they were tired beating us they started with us for the station-house. About every other step Weeks would kick Dipple and my man would smash me with his fist or prod me with his club."

"You low-lived —" said the man who had arrested me, "if you say anything to the contrary about us beating you, you'll be a dead man around here, and you'll be it."

"We didn't say anything in the station-house because we were afraid they would do us like they did McAuliffe, but when Weeks attacked us in Jefferson Market Court this morning on a charge of intoxication we told our story to the Magistrate and he discharged us. Now I am afraid that they will get me and I want the public to know the reason if I am found done up."

This story was told to The Evening World by a young man with a swollen jaw, a split lip, a discolored eye, a left arm with the size of an average man's leg, and a body literally covered with bruises. His appearance was ample corroboration of his tale.
